COLLECTION DEVELOPMENT POLICY STATEMENT

This policy states the principles and guidelines to be used by the Director for Library Services, together with the selection and acquisitions librarian in the selection, acquisition, evaluation, maintenance and preservation of the library materials in all formats. It is to be used to encourage consistency among the subject area specialists who are responsible for developing the collection and communicating with the faculty, staff and students in their respective areas. It will also be used to describe to other libraries and potential users the general scope and content of the collections.

1. Scope

The primary areas in which the library will develop its collection follow the curriculum of the institution.

IFMS – Institute of Fisheries and Marine Sciences
ITEIT – Institute of Teacher Education and Information Technology
IATES – Institute of Agricultural Technology and Entrepreneurial Studies
IHS – Institute of Human Service
IPGS – Institute of Professional and Graduate School

2. Objectives:

2.1 To provide the teachers, researchers and the administrative staff an access to the widest possible variety of media system and services in order to strengthen the support of the educational program of the institution.

2.2. To provide students and other clientele a collection of learning resources that support and supplement their curricular needs. Materials that will enrich their lives personally and help them develop into mature individual are also included.

2.3. To select and provide materials and equipment that facilitate inquiry, explore ideas and concepts, and develop the ability to use library resources in independent study. Integral to this objective is a qualified and competent library staff that serves the needs of the student and faculty through formal and informal bibliographic instruction.

3. Responsibility for Collection Development

The primary responsibility for the development of the collection falls to the professional librarians who are assigned to represent the need of the faculty, staff and students of each college or campus. The Head Librarian will oversee the process and ensures that all areas are covered. The Library Committee and other staff members, faculty, and the community are also encouraged to make suggestions for materials to be added.

4. Levels of Collection

The evaluation of the library collection adopts the conspectus approach in order to determine the strengths and weaknesses of the resources. The following terms designate the levels of the library collection:

0 – Out of Scope: The library does not collect in this area.

1 – Minimal Level: A subject area in which few selections are made beyond very basics works.

1– Basic Information Level: A collection of up-to-date general materials that serve to introduce and define a subject and to indicate the varieties of information available elsewhere. It may include dictionaries, encyclopedias, access to appropriate bibliographic data bases, selected editions of important works, historical surveys, bibliographies, handbooks, a few major periodicals, in the minimum number that will serve the purpose. A basic information collection is not sufficiently intensive to support any advanced undergraduate or graduate courses or independent study in the subject area involved.

2– Study or Instructional Support Level: A collection which is adequate to support undergraduate and most graduate instruction, or sustained independent study; that is, adequate to maintain knowledge of a subject required for limited or generalized purposes, of less than research intensity. It includes a wide range of basic monographs, complete collections of the works of more important writers, selections from the works of secondary writers, a selection representative journals, and access to appropriate non-bibliographic data bases, and the reference tools and fundamental bibliographical apparatus pertaining to the subject.

3– Research level: – A collection that includes the major published source materials required for dissertations and independent research, including materials containing research reporting, new findings, scientific experimental results, and other information useful to researchers. It is intended to include all important reference works and a wide selection of specialized monographs, as well as a very expensive collection of journals, major indexing and abstracting services in the field. Pertinent foreign language materials are included. Older material is retained for historical research.

4– Comprehensive level: - A collection in which a library endeavors, so far as it is reasonably possible, to include all significant works of recorded knowledge (publications, manuscripts, other forms), in all applicable languages, for a necessarily defined and limited field. This level of collecting intensity is one that maintains a "special collection;" the aim, if not the achievement, is exhaustiveness.

5. Selection Policy

Basically, it is the librarian who is responsible for the selection of materials. However, to make the collection more relevant and meaningful the librarian asks the suggestions a recommendation of the faculty members, the students, and the academic community. This has been found to be very effective for the library since the users are in better position to know what they need. The librarian welcomes suggestions for the purchases of materials. However, these recommendations for such materials are, subject to the selection policy of the library.

5.1. The Principles of Selection

5.1.1. Materials directly meet student curricular needs in the courses and or programs of instructions offered.
5.1.2. Materials that permit much latitude collection for student's inquires both current and non-current subjects.
5.1.3. Materials relevant to faculty preparation for class instruction.
5.1.4. Meaningful materials that provide aesthetic sense, stimulates the imagination and increase individual potential for creativity.
5.1.5. Materials for faculty development to keep them informed of their teaching fields.

5.3.5.1. Maps/ Globes

5.3.5.1.1. Accurate and must be updated
5.3.5.1.2. The use of color and symbols are legible and clear
5.3.5.1.3. Provide more detail or larger scale geographic coverage
5.3.5.2. Pictures
5.3.5.2.1. Quality of color
5.3.5.2.2. Manageable in size
5.3.5.2.3. Quality of the reproduction must be clear
5.3.5.3. Charts
5.3.5.3.1 Subject matter should be interested.
5.3.5.3.2. Purpose of the chart

5.3.5.4. Posters
5.3.3.4.1. Subject matter should be interested.
5.3.3.4.2. Reasonable in good condition.
5.3.3.4.3. Wide range of illustrative techniques can be used
5.3.3.4.4. Easy to set up

5.3.6. MANUSCRIPTS

These materials shall include Dissertations, Theses, Feasibility Studies, and Special Projects made by both graduate and undergraduate students of the institution. The library shall accept endorsements of these collection types from different colleges approved by the theses committee/panelist of SPAMAST. These shall be supplementary reference sources for the users.

5.3.7. VERTICAL FILES

The vertical file consisting of clippings from newspapers, pamphlets, booklets, and ephemeral materials is maintained as an additional source of reference. These files supplement the collection with information not readily available in monographic or serials.

5.4. Book Purchase Request Form

Collection development is a joint responsibility of the librarians and the faculty; hence, it is expected that the librarians will work closely with the faculty members in the selection and acquisition of the library resources. All requests for materials are to be reviewed for their relevance to the collection and to the selection guidelines. Students' and staff suggestions are welcomed and will be reviewed under the same standards. Preference will be given to materials needed to support thesis or mission related research.

.4.1. Aids/Tools for Selection

6. Policy on donation and or exchange of library materials

A portion of the materials added to the SPAMAST Library comes thru donation from individuals, alumni, association, private or public agencies or exchange of library materials like Research journal publication of the institution to the other institution. Both materials come from donation and exchange can be important source of rare, unusual or inexpensive items which the library budget may not be enough.

Donations and exchanged library materials will be accepted provided that donors comply with the policies with no restriction attached. With respect to books and other materials, these policies shall be followed:

The librarian shall have the prerogative to refuse or accept gifts and donations which do not contribute to the mission and purposes of the library where necessary. The librarian's decision will be subjected to the library committee's review.

It shall be made clear to the donor that:

6.1. The librarian has the right to discard any gifts in poor physical condition, (i.e. brittle paper, water or mildew damage, underlining in the text, form and / or missing pages).
6.2. The librarian will determine the classification, housing and circulation policies.
6.3. The librarian retains the right to dispose of duplicates and unneeded materials as it sees fit.
6.4. Materials donated will become the property of the library and will be integrated to the general collection.
6.5. The library is inclined to discourage gifts with strings attached since these often are so restrictive that they sometimes make it difficult for the library to reorganize its collection and services with changing times and changing needs in order to make them useful as possible to readers.

Policy on the care and preservation of library materials

Libraries are widely recognized as an integral part of the school. It is where book and other readings materials are organized to support the entire curriculum. Therefore, the care and preservation of its resources are highly regarded. The following are the procedures in order to maintain and preserve the resources.

7.1. Physical Inventory of the Library Materials

7.1.1. Objectives:

7.1.1. To determine which books are missing from the library's collection.
7.1.2. To check the physical condition of the book and other library resources.
7.1.3 To reconcile discrepancies between shelf-list records, and the books in the collection.

7.1.2. Procedures:

7.1.2.1. Shelving/Shelf-Read

7.1.2.1. Books on the shelves should be properly arranged and do shelf-reading.

7.1.2.2. Prepare necessary tools.

7.2.1. Inventory of all library holdings shall be done during summer break.
7.2.2. The inventory of library materials shall be done by the library staff and the Circulation Librarian together with supply officer or his/her qualified representative.

7.2.3. Check the book for any of these conditions: with vandalism, missing pages, torn pages, torn book pockets, torn date due slips, no book card, cover needs replacement, the books need repair. If, found with any of these conditions, place a notation and segregate the book for further action later.

7.2.4. Replace necessary book accessories, cover, mend and repair damaged books before shelving.

7.2.5. Compare the shelf-list card in the order against the corresponding books on the shelve, compare the accession number and other data, if the shelf-list card entry correspond with the book, place check mark (/) before the date at the back of the card. Use pencil for checking.

7.2.6. For missing title, a yellow marker is placed on the card, and place an (x) mark at the back

7.2.7. If there is a discrepancy in the accession number or call number of the book, blue marker is placed on the card and prepare a list of books with shelf-list discrepancies.

7.2.8. Re-check on overdue accounts.

7.2.9. Prepare the final list of missing books.

7.2.10. Submit the results to the Head Librarian.

7.2.11. Submit the list, with the justification of the materials to be discarded, to the VPAA and Faculty Advisory Committee.

7.3. Periodicals Inventory

Periodicals with one-year complete issues shall be bound during summer to avoid losses.

7.3.1. Procedures:

7.3.1.1. Prepare loose magazines and journals ready for binding.

7.3.1.2. Prepare a summary list of periodicals for binding.

8. Weeding of the collection

In order to maintain a current and useful collection, it is necessary to withdraw not needed materials. Periodically, the collection will be reviewed to determine whether the resources should be removed. Criteria for removing materials will be the same as for adding new materials.

8.1. Factors to consider in removing materials include:

8.1.1. Accuracy and timeliness of information

8.1.2. Current or projected future use

8.1.3. Replacement by superior materials

8.1.4. Physical deterioration

8.1.5. Duplication of materials

8.2. Policy on Weeding

8.2.1 Guidelines

8.2.1.1. The weeding of library materials shall be scheduled every summer break.
8.2.1.2. The selection of library materials to be weeded out/discarded shall be done by the circulation Librarian.
8.2.1.3. Materials that fall into the following categories should be considered for withdrawal:

8.2.2. Weeding Criteria

8.2.2.1 Obsolete books not useful for the library's collection and clientele needs (outmoded).
8.2.2.2. Superseded editions.
8.2.2.3. Worn-out, mutilated or badly remarked items.
8.2.2.4. Duplicate copies of seldom used titles.
8.2.2.5. Outdated materials with inaccurate information.
8.2.2.6. Unused clippings and mounted articles of 5-10 years.
8.2.2.7. Retention
8.2.2.8. Classics
8.2.2.9. Annual and other school publications
8.2.2.10. Number of copies available
8.2.2.11. Value and usefulness of an item
8.2.2.12. Historical content and archival value

8.2.3. Procedures:

8.2.3.1. Remove from shelves the books to be weeded out.
8.2.3.2. Make a list of books to be weeded out.
8.2.3.3. Submit list of books to the official concern/ supply officer for approval to the committee.
8.2.3.4. Place all weeded books at the separate area of the library for condemnation.
8.2.3.5. Replace the shelves with the latest book collection.

Library Advisory Committee and experts in the field, teachers teaching the subject or any knowledgeable person may be consulted for help in weeding.

Generally, unusable books (because of their content and physical condition) are to be removed from collection.

Weeding is good only when the library holds a stable collection. Materials weed-out should be replaced immediately with a current collection in order to maintain balance of the core collection.

Library Staff Development Program Policy

The Program

The mission the SPAMAST library is to provide support to instruction, research, extension production and other activities of its clientele with the use of organized and relevant resources. Because the success of this enterprise rests ultimately on the effectiveness of the librarian and staff, it is important that each member have the skills, knowledge, and commitment necessary to provide appropriate levels of service. Library personnel training and development activities are, therefore, an essential component of this mission.

Flexibility, perspective and broad knowledge are valued assets in library work. Library staff may further their library education and training through a variety of activities such as in-house training, self-directed learning, and attendance at professional meetings, workshops, and seminars, and academic courses from universities, colleges, and technical colleges. The Library's Staff Development Program provides opportunities for individuals to expand their knowledge and experience in the library and information field. Further, it enables individuals to develop a range of skills within, and in a broader perspective of, their area of work. The purpose is the creation of more versatile library personnel better able to meet the changing needs of the Library and the college community.

Definition

Staff development - is a continual process used to guide and encourage staff members to develop their skills, capabilities, knowledge and attitudes in order to mutually benefit both the organization and the individual. Staff development expands concepts and general techniques, encouraging staff to take new approaches and risks in reaching solutions. It provides confidence in reassessing patterns of thinking and acting.

In-service training - is one way that both new and seasoned library employees can enhance existing skills to remain current in job-related programs, processes and procedures, exchange ideas, and network with fellow professionals.

Goals

1. Provide opportunities to expand library skills and knowledge in order to enhance job performance.

2. Provide greater organizational effectiveness through increased awareness among Library staff of the interrelationships and functions of the various activities and services of the Library.

3. Provide training that promotes staff versatility in a work environment that is responsive to changing technology.

4. Help foster harmonious and supportive work environment throughout the Library.

5. Provide opportunities that enable library staff to improve skills not necessarily related to their present positions in an effort to aid in preparing for advancement.

The ultimate goal is improvement in organizational effectiveness and the quality of library service through improved performance.

Goals

1. Provide opportunities to expand library skills and knowledge in order to enhance job performance.

2. Provide greater organizational effectiveness through increased awareness among Library staff of the interrelationships and functions of the various activities and services of the Library.

3. Provide training that promotes staff versatility in a work environment that is responsive to changing technology.

4. Help foster harmonious and supportive work environment throughout the Library.

5. Provide opportunities that enable library staff to improve skills not necessarily related to their present positions in an effort to aid in preparing for advancement.

Scope

The Library staff development program includes opportunities for development through participation in the following activities:

1. In-house training sessions and workshops covering a broad range of topics and skills designed to improve job performance.
2. Committee and task force work offering opportunities to broaden experience, as well as contributing to library programs.

3. Other opportunities made available by related groups and organizations, such as PLAI, DRLA, MASTSLiNet, etc.

Librarians & Library Staff Should Have the Following Personal Competencies:

- Communication
- Customer Service
- Leadership
- Lifelong Learning and Personal Growth
- Ethics and Values
- Interpersonal
- Cultural

In-house Development Activities

Scheduled staff development activities are presented in a variety of formats including: lectures, tours, group activities, films, handouts, demonstrations, professional travel reports, interactive sessions, printed materials, and power point presentations.

Responsibility

Administration, Director of Library Services, librarians, job orders, and student assistants share responsibility for the implementation and success of the staff development program.

The Administration's responsibilities are to:

1. Create and foster an environment that promote training and support the improvement organizational effectiveness and individual skills.
2. Review and allocate funding and resources to support staff training and development activities, in-house and out-of-the library.
3. Provide positive recognition for those participating in staff development and training activities.

The Director of Library Services' responsibilities are to:

1. Create and foster an environment that promotes training and supports the improvement organizational effectiveness and individual skills.
2. Review and allocate funding and resources to support staff training and development activities, in-house and out-of-the library.
3. Provide positive recognition for those participating in staff development and training activities.
4. Training staff to meet their job responsibilities.

5. Offering encouragement and support for participation in staff development and continuing education activities that support the individual's, the department's and the library's goals.
6. Interpretation of staff and career development policies.
7. Promoting training that fosters personnel and long-range development
8. Directing each employee to develop training and development goals each year. Progress in meeting those goals is a part of each employee's annual evaluation. A discrepancy between an individual's expected performance and their actual performance should be looked at as a possible training need.

All library staff members have the responsibility for:

1. Monitoring their growth and development.
2. Expressing their individual training needs to supervisors or department heads.
3. Alerting supervisors to specific training and/or development opportunities
4. Taking advantage of the opportunities offered.
5. Sharing and exploring issues in librarianship with colleagues.
6. Making recommendations about training needs and programs desired.

Participation

All library staff are provided with opportunities, and are encouraged to participate in library staff development activities.

Attendance to in-house training and development programs is recognized as part of any employee's annual continuing education or ongoing training requirement.

Each employee is expected to participate in staff development and/or training activities at least one every semester. Trainings will be conducted every June, during summer breaks and December, during semestral breaks.
